Perhaps sometimes, the may be true,
Budt, den dimes walt off rive.
I find me oudt dot men himself
Was been der glinging vine
Und when hees friendts dhey all was gone,
Und he was shurst "tead preke."
Dot's when der woman shteps right in.
Und been der shturdy oak.

Shust go oup to der paschall groundis

Und see dhoce "shturdy oaks"

All planted roundt am n der seats

Shust hear dheir laughs und shokes!

Then see dhoce womens at der tubs,

Mit glothes outt on der lines:

Which vas der shturdy oaks, mine friendis,

Und which der glinging vines?

When sickless in her household comes,
    Und weeks und weeks id shtays,
Who vas id fightts id mitoudt resdt,
    Dhose yeary nighdts und days?
Who beace und gomfort alvays prings,
    Und cools dot fefered prow?
More like id vas der tender vine
    Dot oak he glings to now.

"Wauw vants bocht' eedle liere pabaw,

Der boet van lime said;

Dher'e's leedle dot man he zuid van,

I dink id means, inshted;

Und when der years keep roiling on,

Dher' cares und droubles pringing,

He vants to pe der shturdy oak,

Und, also, do der glinging.

Days, when oaks don't give shelter,
I will hold so shuddering.
The clinging vines they are some strength
To help run life's miseries.
In heat and sickness, shop and pain,
In calm or stormy weather,
Trees bedder do those trees and vines
Should always cling bedder.
